As for the cast, Howard Keel gives the greatest performance of his motion picture career, - a Mephistopheles whom the audience watches fascinatedly as he outbluffs the outlandish Kate.

But Kate herself left me cold. I know Kathryn Grayson can sing. But she can't throw things - convincingly. Kate's name is on the play but it's Howard Keel who walks away with it.

But if there's a suspicion Kate is miscast the movie is saved, from the feminine angle, by Ann Miller, the Shrew's younger sister — who sings and dances her way into your long-time memory.

Mine is a valid criticism, for having seen both the play and the movie I know that on the stage Kate stormed her way into the top role — but in the film her suitor steals it . . . Howard Keel.

Maybe you'll say, on seeing "Kiss is not expressing the desires of Neward Keel," "Shakespeare was never vada County farmers when he advotate this." But you'd be wrong. HEADED FOR THE BULLSEYE-El Torro jumps the fence at a Caracas, Venezuela, bullfighting school sending the manager, at left, scampering for safety behind a barrier. The bugler, in center stand, was signaling for the removal of the bull after 15 minutes of action. Youngsters, between 10 and 20 years of age learn the art of bull fighting here for 75 cents a week. Every Sunday they face a live bull for 15 minutes. The bulls charge the youngsters head on, sometimes the students leap the fence for safety and sometimes El Torro jumps the fence in pursuit of the aspiring bull fighters. No one was hurt and the bull was led back to the corral.
